

Remote Working Mini Grant Recipients as of 6/11/20

In March 2020 as the pandemic gripped the world, it became clear that many nonprofit agencies would have to change the way they delivered services. In some cases, employees began working from home. Information once stored on office computers migrated to the cloud. In-person meetings were shifted to virtual platforms.

Recognizing all of this, The Frist Foundation approached the Center for Nonprofit Management to partner in offering remote working grants to Middle Tennessee nonprofits. The grants, capped at $1,500, went to computer hardware, software and subscription services aimed at making it easier for employees to work and deliver services virtually.

Altogether, we made 128 grants through CNM to help agencies adjust to a new world.
